Diana: Prologue

Title: Diana Prologue

>AN: This is for all of my friends out there. I hope they and you will enjoy it. Please be kind I'm not very good at writing.

>Disclaimer: I don't own any of the Sailor Moon Characters at all so please, please don't sew little old me.

> In the city of Tokyo, Japan, everyone was in his or her beds sleeping for it was late. Only one girl lay awake. At the young age of seven she sat on her bed crying for her only friend and sister was now gone. The one she played with, the one she told her young dreams of kingdoms was now gone. Taken from her, saying good bye was so hard for both of them. She hated seeing her fifteen year old sister in tears.

> Her sister had said she needed to go for some kind of training. Her last words were, "No matter what happens, Usa, remember this. One, you are amazingly smart. Two, You are stronger than you think, and three, I love you and will always do all in my power to protect you." Her words echoed through her head.

> Knowing her parents they were hurt because she chose to train than to stay with them. She chose to go across the country than to be with her. That's what hurt the most. Out of pure exhaustion she fell against her pillow unable to shed another tear. Quickly she fell into a dreamless sleep.

>AN: That's it for the prologue. Don't worry I promise the rest will be longer.
